"Cornwall... is more than a holiday destination. It is a Celtic nation with a unique culture and heritage, which is rarely represented on screen in a contemporary context. It is also an area of huge socio-economic deprivation – something visitors rarely see. Cornish Voices aims to bring through the voices of that culture, and develop stories of contemporary Cornwall, while providing training in craft skills; supporting the development of TV and Radio/podcast ideas; demystifying the business; setting up networking events; and introducing those writers to the range of opportunities offered in the broadcast industry."

Anne Edyvean, Head of BBC Writersroom

Raising the profile of Cornish as a living language

BBC Radio Cornwall have made a commitment to increase the awareness and use of the Cornish language:

- Increasing the use of Cornish Language on air.
- Working closely with Screen Cornwall to bring direct skills training to targeted communities throughout the county, Cornwall.
- Providing a platform for people to showcase their work locally and nationally through BBC Radio Cornwall, BBC Upload and BBC Music Introducing.
- Promoting national BBC opportunities such as apprenticeships, New Voices and Young Reporter.

The screenshot shows the BBC New Creatives website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with the BBC logo, a user profile 'Denzil Monk', and links for News, Sport, Weather, iPlayer, Sounds, and More. A search bar is also present. The main content area is titled 'New Creatives' and features a large video player showing a man in a classroom setting. Below the video player, there's a 'Listen now' button. To the right of the video player, there's a 'More episodes' section with a link to 'See all episodes from New Creatives'. Below the video player, there's a section titled 'Our Words Sing Still' with a description and metadata.

Our Words Sing Still

Our Words Sing Still (Agan Geryow Yw Kana Hwath) by Florence Browne explores young people's attitudes towards Cornish, giving the language a space as a living part of contemporary British culture. A soundscape of life in Cornwall surrounds the sounds of language lessons, playing and poetry in Cornish, from young children raised bilingually through to the next generation of adults rekindling their connection to this ancient language. Complex emotions surrounding Cornish identity are examined, and we hear how young people today can still struggle to embrace their heritage and language. Featuring music from Cornish groups Dalla and Black Eyed Nancy, and a new commission from Cornish-language poet Taran Spalding-Jenkin.
